HRI RESEARCH CLUSTER:

DIGITIZING ETHICALLY

How do we create digital cultural heritage resources in conversation with communities? Join us for a discussion of doing history in a digital age and working with community partners as they preserve their own stories. Two recommended readings will frame our conversation about how to promote equity, access, and inclusion through digital archives. We'll also discuss strategies used by activists and community organizers to overcome these challenges. Anyone interested in public history, community archives, collecting, or research is encouraged to join us!
